

CSIS INC. ANNUAL NATIONAL CONFERENCE

THE BUSINESS OF SECURITY

The Crowne Plaza Hotel – 101 Lyon Street, OTTAWA, Ontario K1R 5T9

September 19-21, 2010

It is no secret that security technology has evolved throughout the decades and will continue to do so. This does not change the fact that the true fundamentals of security continue to be the protection of people, property and information. The key to these fundamentals is how they are delivered and managed for a specific site or business and their flexibility to adapt to inevitable change.

If one were to remove procedures, physical and electronic equipment and controls from the security equation, the true foundation for a successful security operation is personnel and training. Thus the “BUSINESS OF SECURITY,” whether it is delivered by a security service provider or through a proprietary operation, is about successful recruiting, training and managing.

From the Vancouver Olympic and Paralympic Games to the International Summits taking place this year in Ontario, our conference will focus on the lessons learned from these large security undertakings and how they might be adapted as a best practice and applied to our security operations.

The Canadian Society for Industrial Security (CSIS Inc.) was founded in 1954 and federally incorporated in 1961 as a not-for-profit national organization. Its mission is to provide and promote professional security leadership through advocacy, ethics, standards and education. Most members have ties - past or present - with law enforcement agencies, the security industry, emergency preparedness and response teams, fire departments, tactical emergency medical services and all levels of government. Security-conscious students, job seekers and professionals from other industries continue to be a welcome complement to our membership.
